Welcome!

Congratulations on being appointed to an advisory board for the City of Beverly Hills. The City is proud of its longstanding tradition of citizen participation and extends a hearty welcome to all commission appointees. Your service as an advisory board member is vital to our democratic process and to the smooth operation of Beverly Hills municipal government. We look forward to working with you for the betterment of our community!

This handbook was designed to help you understand the more important aspects of being a City commissioner. Accepted practices are summarized for the sake of brevity, but you can always find more detailed information about any topic in the City Clerk's Office. The procedures outlined here should help to guide your actions as an advisory board member and to clarify both your expectations and those of the City.

City Profile

Whether you're a longtime resident of Beverly Hills or someone who has recently settled here, you can probably learn a few new things about your City. As a community representative, it's often beneficial to view current events from a historical perspective – and to be aware of the full range of services and programs the City provides. With that in mind, here's some information about Beverly Hills that may interest you.

A Short History

Long before the movie industry discovered Beverly Hills, the Native American Tongva knew the value of the area by its precious, bubbling springs near what is now Beverly Drive and Sunset Boulevard. The Tongva considered this a sacred site and named it the Gathering of the Waters, or, in Spanish, El Rodeo de las Aguas.

With the arrival of the Spaniards in 1769, the Tongva people and their peaceful way of life were destroyed, and the California rancho system was established. One of those ranchos belonged to Maria Rita Valdez de Villa, a widow and matriarch of a large family, whose adobe ranch house stood at the intersection of Sunset Boulevard and Alpine Drive. In 1854, she sold her cattle and horse ranch and relocated her family to the pueblo of Los Angeles.

During the next 50 years, the original rancho was put to a variety of uses, including a site for oil drilling, a sheep ranch and a lima bean farm, depending on who bought and sold the land. Finally, after enduring drought, the collapse of the land boom and a series of unproductive wells, the property gained new life through the Rodeo Land and Water Company in 1906. Burton Green renamed it Beverly Hills after Beverly Farms, Massachusetts. The property was to be developed as a subdivision of large lots on curving tree-lined streets, complemented by the three-block Santa Monica Park.

In 1912, the Beverly Hills Hotel was built at the site of the Gathering of the Waters. Served by a small railroad, it became the center of community life. Still, settlement was slow. In 1914, land in the canyons was added to bring the population up to the 500 required for incorporation. Beverly Hills became a city on January 28, 1914.

The new City of Beverly Hills became synonymous with glamour as early as 1919, when actors Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford took up residence in "Pickfair." A large migration of motion picture industry people attracted to the elegant lifestyle soon followed, including Gloria Swanson, Will Rogers, Charlie Chaplin, and John Barrymore.

Life in Beverly Hills accelerated in 1920 with the construction of a wooden racetrack that drew huge crowds. But in 1923, the very existence of Beverly Hills was threatened by annexation to the City of Los Angeles. However, Rogers, Pickford and others mobilized against the plan, and the vote failed. In 1925, the citizens voted to issue a bond to join with other cities to purchase a campus site for UCLA. It was also at this time that Rogers became the first and only honorary Mayor of Beverly Hills.

The City continued to grow. Police and fire departments were established, and the spectacular Regent Beverly Wilshire hotel and the Doheny family's Greystone Mansion were completed in the late 1920s. The first public library was established in 1929, and the distinctive City Hall was built in 1931. Post-World War II, Beverly Hills continued to develop as one of the most glamorous places in the world to live, work and play. The Golden Triangle, with Rodeo Drive at its center, was built and marketed to the world as a shopping and dining destination. However, the growth of the commerce in the city did not lessen the beauty and desirability of the residential area. By the end of the 1950s, few vacant lots remained.

The City of Beverly Hills has grown from a population of 550 to 34,980 in 2006. More than 200,000 people work here each day, and numerous major businesses are headquartered here. Even with its world-class profile, the City of Beverly Hills remains a small town at heart, proud of its residential neighborhoods, municipal services, fine schools, community involvement, and active churches and synagogues.

Purpose of Citizen Advisory Bodies

Productive citizen boards, committees and commissions can provide the insights and energy essential for creating better communities. Members of these groups help bring about important decisions that can shape the future of the City, often using their impressive talents and expertise. As a City commissioner, you provide a critical link to the public, and help to ensure that City policies reflect community values.

With the exception of the Planning Commission, all City of Beverly Hills commissions are strictly advisory, meaning they submit recommendations to the City Council after sifting and analyzing data. The Council – which always makes the ultimate decision – may or may not approve a commission's recommendations. Nevertheless, each suggestion from a City commission aids in the process of wise decision-making.

In the City of Beverly Hills, advisory commissions are made up of thoughtful and concerned residents who dedicate many hours of service every year, without receiving compensation. They are among the most respected and appreciated volunteers in the community. Following are a few of the ways in which citizen commissions serve the democratic process in Beverly Hills:

- Hosting public meetings and conducting outreach to determine how the community feels about certain issues
- Recommending policies and procedures related to their respective fields to the City Council
- Serving as intermediary between the public, City staff and the City Council by providing information, explanations and support for different points of view

City of Beverly Hills Commissions

The Beverly Hills City Council has established 11 commissions, each with a specific focus and each charged with advising the Council on issues within the scope of their responsibility.

The City's Planning Commission and Board of Zoning Adjustments are both legislated by State law; the other boards exist as a result of formal City Council action. Here's a listing of official City commissions:

Architectural Commission

- Five members with staff support from the Community Development Department
- Approves the aesthetics of development in privately-owned commercial and multi-family residential areas of the City

- Advises on the preservation of historical and cultural landmarks, encroachments in commercial-adjacent public rights-of-way, and on City building projects
- Reviews landscape design, paint and other finishes, signs, and exterior building form; makes certain findings about the circumstances and merits of the design proposals prior to issuance of associated building permits
- Reviews specific departures from the sign code through a special procedure
- Presents Architectural Design Awards for outstanding completed commercial and multi-family projects

Charitable Solicitations Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Police Department
- Reviews applications for charitable solicitations conducted within City limits

Cultural Heritage Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Community Development Department
- Advises the City Council on cultural and historic preservation
- Oversees the City's Historic Preservation Program
- Advises the City Council on designation of local historic landmarks and districts, Mills Act Contracts
- Oversees Historic resource surveys, the City's inventory of potentially historic properties, and the City's Local Register of Historic Landmarks
- Maintains the City's Local List of Master Architects
- Acts as review panel for design or architectural projects when the project also requires review by the Cultural Heritage Commission
- Reviews and approves applications for Certificate of Appropriateness and Certificates of Hardship
- Develops suitable signs, plaques or other markers
- Designs and participates in educational and interpretive programs
- Develops a program to celebrate Historic Resources

Design Review Commission

- Five members with staff support from the Community Development Department
- Reviews proposed single-family residential development and its impact on the streetscape to maintain the character, image, beauty and reputation of the City's residential neighborhoods
- Considers certain modifications to residential development standards
- Presents Residential Design Awards for outstanding completed residential projects

Fine Art Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Community Services Department
- Enhances the beauty of the City through the installation of public art
- Approves public art under the terms and conditions of the Public Art Ordinance and recommends funding for acquiring public art
- Initiates and promotes the purchase, donation or loan of fine art
- Advises on the artistic merit and value of paintings, sculpture and other articles of art offered to the City as donations, purchase or disposition for appropriate positioning and display
- Formulates rules and regulations governing the criteria for determination of fine art

Health and Safety Commission

- Seven members, with staff support from the Policy and Management Department; liaisons are provided from all departments and the school district
- Maintains and improves the overall health and safety of the community
- Broadens the community's opportunities for participation on issues of public health, welfare and safety
- Helps develop strategies relating to disaster preparedness, disaster hazard mitigation, disaster management, and health and safety risk reduction
- Supports the work of all City departments, the business sector and the efforts of residents before, during and after a medical, natural or man-made disaster
- Assists in communicating the City's health, safety and disaster preparedness messages to the community and with City-sponsored related activities and programs
- Provides a forum for members of the community to bring concerns regarding public health, welfare, safety and comfort

Human Relations Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Community Services Department
- Advises, recommends, assists and encourages activities that promote positive human relations in all aspects of community life
- Actively promotes a just and equitable multi-cultural society
- Endeavors to reduce conflict and tension, as well as discrimination, prejudice and stereotyping based on race, religion, gender, sexual orientation, national origin, age, disability, or any other arbitrary factor
- Defining, identifying and tracking existing and emerging issues that may benefit from intervention or conflict resolution
- Receiving citizen complaints, in an appropriate time and manner, concerning the interactions of City employees with the public.

Planning Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Community Development Department
- Legislated by State law, which establishes the areas over which the Commission has authority, either as a decision-making body or advisory to the City Council
- Recommends development of land use policies to the City Council
- Reviews capital improvement programs for conformance to the General Plan
- Advises the City Council on applications for changes to zoning regulations and the General Plan and is often the final authority on discretionary development applications and zoning variances, and for the environmental assessment of such applications, as prescribed by law
- Acts as review panel for state and federally mandated programs

Public Works Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Public Works & Transportation Department
- Advises and makes recommendations on matters relating to public works facilities, infrastructure and programs
- Advises on the planning, evaluation and delivery of public works systems and programs, including water, wastewater, storm drain, streets, alleys, street lighting and refuse management
- Recommends utility rate structure changes
- Recommends public works capital improvement program budget items
- Conducts public outreach for such programs as water conservation, refuse recycling and graffiti removal

Recreation and Parks Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Community Services Department
- Advises and makes recommendations on the planning, evaluation and delivery of recreation and parks programs and facilities, including the Greystone Estate grounds and mansion
- Formulates general policies on use and delivery of recreation and park services
- Evaluates the effectiveness of programs in relation to City Council policy objectives
- Conducts public outreach on recreation and parks programs
- Advises the City Council on capital improvements
- Recommends proposed user fees for facilities and programs

Traffic and Parking Commission

- Five members, with staff support from the Public Works & Transportation department

- Advises the Transportation/Engineering Official and the Police Chief on ways to improve general traffic conditions in the City
- Develops recommendations relating to transportation, traffic, and off-street and on-street parking in the City
- Advises on issues of valet and taxi operations

Relationships within City Government

Commissions and City Council

As a Beverly Hills commissioner, you can think of yourself as the eyes and ears of the City Council, for you play an important role in extending the reach of democracy into the community. However, your primary function is to advise the City Council (except for some actions taken by the Architectural, Design Review and Planning commissions). As a commissioner, you will examine relevant issues of concern, discussing them in depth at meetings where public input is encouraged.

Your group will then present the best possible recommendations to the City Council, understanding that the Council has the final say in all policy matters. At times, you may be asked by the City Council to revisit an issue and provide more information or direction, or to meet as a group with the Council for further study. Remember that the City Council has a broader area of concern and does not always follow commission recommendations.

The Mayor's Cabinet, comprised of the chair of each of the City's commissions, meets monthly to provide updates on current and forthcoming commission activities.

Commissions and City Staff

Generally, a City staff member is assigned to each commission, acting as a technical advisor to the group. The staff liaison attends commission meetings and provides administrative support and information. Commissioners may freely communicate with their staff liaison, but they have no authority to supervise or direct the work of City employees. Staff members report directly to the Beverly Hills City Manager.

Immediately following a commission meeting, the staff liaison prepares a synopsis of the meeting for the City Council, allowing the Council to keep current with the work being done by each of its commissions.

While staff liaisons will present all commission recommendations to the City Council, they will not advocate the group's position if it runs counter to City staff viewpoints. Traditionally, commission-staff relations in Beverly Hills have always been friendly and mutually respectful. However, if commissioners do have concerns about staff performance, they should be aired privately, with the staff member, Department Manager or the City Manager.

Relationships within the Community

Commissions and the Public

While commissions serve a vital function for the City Council, their ultimate responsibility is to the Beverly Hills community. Within their specific purviews, each commission examines ideas and programs to determine if they are not only economically feasible, but also beneficial to residents. In Beverly Hills, commissioners are encouraged to take the public pulse formally – at public meetings – and informally, chatting with friends, neighbors and other community members. After all, the City’s “customers” are the residents, visitors and business owners who pay for City services.

Commissions and the Media

Advisory board members should be cautious in any dealings with the media. You should not speak on behalf of your group unless specifically authorized by a vote of that body. And, you should not speak on behalf of the City unless specifically asked to by the City Council or City Manager’s Office. When talking to the media, make it very clear that you are speaking only for yourself (although you can state your membership on a City commission).

Commission members sometimes have divergent views, and it is not in the best interest of the group for individuals to use the press as a forum to promote their position. Productive group relations may best be fostered by deferring public comments to the commission chairperson, who can articulate the group’s views, or simply declining to comment. It is particularly inappropriate to discuss items before they come up for commission review. On matters of City policy, don’t speculate on Council action; it is best to refer media to the City’s public information officer.

Member Responsibilities and Terms of Office

Throughout its history, the City of Beverly Hills has been blessed by hundreds of dedicated volunteers who have made enormous contributions to the community through their work on advisory boards. As a newly appointed commissioner, you have the potential and the opportunity to continue improving Beverly Hills' quality of life as you engage in genuine public service. Along with your appointment, however, comes a certain degree of responsibility. To be a successful and effective commission member, keep these actions in mind:

- Try to attend every meeting. There is a limit on the number of meetings you can miss before your board membership is revoked
- Demonstrate respect, kindness, consideration and courtesy to others; remember that it is not personal if you lose a debate
- Prepare in advance of meetings (e.g., read agenda packets carefully prior to the meeting) and be familiar with issues on the agenda
- Be respectful of other people's time. Stay focused and act efficiently during meetings
- Serve as a model of leadership and inspire public confidence in Beverly Hills government
- Act and speak with honesty and integrity
- Do not speak for the commission unless authorized
- Do not speak for the City unless authorized to do so by the City Council or City Manager's Office

Chair and Vice-Chair

Most commissions appoint a chairperson and a vice-chairperson from within their group. These officer appointments are conducted at a set time during the year and the terms are usually for one year. Many commissions rotate their chairperson, giving everyone an opportunity to serve; however, the willingness and availability of appointees to these positions should be taken into consideration, as chair and vice-chair duties usually require additional time commitments.

Role of the Chair

The chair's duties include the following:

- Preside at all official meetings of the commission
- Consult with the staff liaison in drafting the meeting agenda
- Attend City Council meetings to represent the commission as needed
- Solicit opinions from commissioners and protect new thoughts from being rejected prior to fair evaluation
- Keep the discussion focused on the issue

Role of the Vice-Chair

- The vice-chair's primary responsibility is to substitute for the chair as needed

Terms

Commissioners are appointed by the City Council for a two-year term, and may be reappointed for four years at the discretion of the Council. In most cases, those applying for vacant seats must be residents of the City. Appointees must commit to regular attendance at commission meetings. Among the qualifications of a City commissioner are knowledge and experience in the board's area of interest, and a willingness to be objective and open-minded in seeking solutions.

When vacancies occur on any of the City's commissions, they are either scheduled or unscheduled. Scheduled vacancies happen when a current commissioner's term has expired. Unscheduled openings occur for any reason, other than the expiration of a term (i.e., illness, change of residency, extended business travel). Beginning with the notification period, it takes about six months to fill a vacant seat (a little less for an unscheduled opening).

An "oath of office" is required for all commissioners. This is a standard oath set forth in the California State Constitution and is required for all elected and appointed officials in California, as well as for all city employees.

The City of Beverly Hills has taken significant action to ensure its process of appointing commissioners is unbiased and that it results in the most qualified applicants being appointed to fill board vacancies.

Resigning or Removal from a Commission

If you need to resign your commission seat because of personal or professional circumstances, send a letter to the City Council – via the City Clerk – stating the effective date of the resignation, and as a matter of courtesy, notify the chair and the staff liaison.

Commissioners serve at the pleasure of the City Council and can be removed from office at any time by majority vote of the Council. Among reasons the Council may dismiss a commissioner are: excessive absence from meetings, falsely representing commission or Council business, unbecoming or illegal behavior, inappropriate or rude behavior to a City staff member, another commissioner or member of the public or inappropriate use of resources or funds.

Commissioners Roles and Responsibilities in a Disaster

Before a Disaster

- Prepare your home and develop a family disaster plan. To be adequately prepared for an emergency, you are encouraged to be self-sufficient for at least five to seven days
- Support ongoing community preparedness efforts such as the Citizen Corp programs, including CERT (Community Emergency Response Team training), NHW (Neighborhood Watch) and DCS (Disaster Communications System: Ham Operators)

During a Disaster

- Follow emergency information

After a Disaster

- As soon as possible, Commissioners will be fully briefed and advised where their services are needed most
- Commissioners should work initially with Department Staff. Once the Emergency Operations Center (EOC) is opened, Commissioners should work with the Liaison Officer to obtain information and to learn where their services are needed most
- Commissioners who have pre-assigned roles should report according to instructed, e.g., DCS, CERT, Hotline or pre-determined department responsibility

10 Tips for New Commissioners

While the following advice has been assembled for newly appointed City of Beverly Hills commissioners, many of these points also apply to veteran board members as well.

1. Understand the purpose of your commission; be clear on your role and responsibility
2. Attend meetings of the commission before applying for the position
3. As soon as you are appointed, regularly attend meetings (even before taking office) to become familiar with current issues under discussion
4. Read through minutes of previous meetings
5. Ask the staff liaison if there is background material that would be helpful for you to read and study
6. Become familiar with the basic rules of parliamentary procedure
7. Attend one or two City Council meetings to better understand how the role of the individual commission fits into the overall governance of the City
8. Be aware that as soon as you are appointed, you are subject to the Brown Act open meeting law
9. Bring an open mind to each meeting. You are representing an entire community, so it's important to put aside personal opinions and be open to new ideas, information and points of view
10. Demonstrate patience, show empathy and remain dignified under stress. Your behavior and attitudes are in the spotlight and should reflect the highest standards of the community
11. The chairperson is the spokesperson for the commission when talking to the media.

About Meetings

Regular

Most Beverly Hills commissions meet regularly once a month, with the exception of the Planning Commission, which meets more frequently. Regular meetings are held at the same time on designated dates, but additional meetings may be scheduled as needed. As is the case for all meetings, a quorum – that is, a majority of commissioners – is required to conduct business. If a quorum is not present, the meeting may be adjourned by the members who are there.

Each commission, with its staff liaison, provides for its own meetings, coordinating logistics and agenda posting with the City Clerk. The meetings must be publicly noticed, held in a public area within the City limits and be open to everyone. These requirements fulfill provisions of the Brown Act, which is the State of California's Public Meeting Act (see Legal Matters).

Adjourned

An adjourned meeting is one that continues the immediately preceding regular or special meeting. (The phrase should not be confused with the act of adjourning.) Advisory groups may adjourn any meeting to a stated time and place within the City limits. Notice must be given of the adjournment, and a copy of the notice must be posted within 24 hours after the first meeting ends.

Special

If there is a pressing need to conduct City business that cannot wait until a commission's regularly scheduled meeting, a special meeting may be called. Written notice of the special meeting must be posted and delivered to each commission member at least 24 hours before the time of the meeting, and it must indicate the business to be discussed. Only the items included in the notice may be considered and acted upon at the special meeting.

Subcommittee

From time to time, commissions may form subcommittees to study issues in detail or when outside expertise is needed. All subcommittee work comes back to the full commission for review in a public meeting. Subcommittee may not be composed of a quorum of board members. Meetings for continuing or "standing" subcommittees are considered public meetings and must have posted agendas in order to comply with the Brown Act.

Televised

BH10, the City's cable channel, provides live coverage and taped replays of selected commission meetings.

Agendas and Minutes

An agenda outlines the topics or items of business that will be discussed and acted upon at each commission meeting. Agendas are usually prepared by the staff liaison, in consultation with the commission chair. In order to comply with the Brown Act, each agenda must be posted by the City Clerk's Office at least 72 hours before the meeting, in areas that are accessible to the general public. Also, by law, the agenda must include a spot during the meeting for public comments.

Minutes of all meetings are kept as an official record of proceedings and actions taken. They are available to the public and to the City Council, which may use the commission's minutes as background in making decisions. Corrections and changes to the minutes can be made only in public meetings with the approval of the advisory body and not by the private request of any person. The minutes of each commission meeting are recorded by either the staff liaison or a member of the group.

Minutes can be written in three different formats: action minutes reflect the motion, the person who made it and the second; summary minutes include the action plus a brief summary of the discussion; and detailed minutes incorporate actions plus a record of the entire discussion. In Beverly Hills, action minutes are most routinely prepared in the form of a synopsis, although various commissions also provide summary minutes.

Rules of Procedure

For the most part, Beverly Hills advisory bodies follow the same rules of procedure as the City Council, although a less formal, more modified approach to parliamentary procedure is appropriate at the commission level. Generally, a simplified version of governmental 'rules of order' allows commissioners to effectively conduct business without becoming bogged down in the technicalities of parliamentary law. Common courtesy also goes a long way in promoting productive, efficient meetings, where everyone has a chance to be heard in a cordial and respectful setting.

It is, however, still important to follow some form of parliamentary procedure during the course of a meeting. Besides providing a sense of order and a smooth flow to the meeting, such procedures:

- Promote cooperation and harmony so that people can work together more effectively to accomplish their goals
- Guarantee each individual an equal right to propose motions, speak, ask questions and vote
- Protect the rights of minority points of view and give the minority the same consideration and respect as those in the majority
- Encourage the full and free discussion of every motion presented
- Ensure that the meeting is fair and conducted in good faith

Some Basics

Voting Procedure

When present, all commissioners are expected to vote. The only time it is not appropriate to vote is when a commissioner has a conflict of interest. In that case, the commissioner should step down, leave the room and not participate in the discussion or vote on the item. (See Legal Matters for more on conflicts of interest.) A tie vote is equivalent to a vote that has failed. The chair may publicly explain the effect of the tie vote for the public.

Motions

A motion is the way that a group under parliamentary procedure conducts business. Here are the steps involved in making a simple motion:

1. The maker of the motion asks for recognition by the Chairperson.
2. After the individual is recognized, s/he starts the motion with, "I move ..."
3. The Chair asks if there is a second to the motion. Another member of the group must provide the second in order for discussion to begin on the motion.
4. The Chair then restates the motion with these words: "It has been moved and seconded that ..." and opens the floor to discussion.
5. The Chair recognizes members who wish to comment on the motion. Only one motion may be discussed at a time. It is important that all members of the group are clear on what the motion is and what its effect will be. Spirited discussion helps to answer questions and explore different interpretations and/or impacts of the motion.
6. At the end of the discussion, the Chair "calls for the question" and asks how many members vote "aye" and how many vote "no."

Legal Matters

Democracy at the municipal level is protected by many different local, state and federal laws. Beverly Hills commissioners must abide by the same regulations as the City Council. In fulfilling your role and responsibilities as a City commissioner, you should understand that these legal requirements are designed to give citizens fair access to their government and due process through public hearings.

The Brown Act

Whenever a quorum (or majority) of a commission is discussing city business, it is a meeting as defined by the Brown Act. All meetings must be open to the public, noticed and agendaized. The public must receive notice of subjects being discussed at the meeting and be given an opportunity to comment. In regard to the Brown Act, all councils, boards and commissions are “legislative bodies.” The Brown Act applies to all commissions established by the City Council, even if the commission only reviews or takes administrative actions.

Commissioners should be very wary about discussing business among themselves before meeting in public. Such actions, sometimes known as “serial” meetings, are strictly prohibited. Specifically, this means that commissioners may not individually meet, telephone, email, fax or otherwise communicate among each other about a topic that will eventually involve the action of a quorum. Such behind-the-scene moves are a violation of the open meeting law, depriving the public of the right to hear the deliberations and to participate in the decision-making at a meaningful time.

Conflict of Interest

The Political Reform Act of 1974 applies the economic conflict of interest law to members of certain City commissions, as well as to elected and appointed officials. As stated in the Government Code, “No public official at any level of state or local government shall make, participate in making or in any way attempt to use his/her official position to influence a government decision in which s/he knows or has reason to know s/he has a financial interest.” The financial interest of immediate family members must also be considered.

While there is nothing wrong about having a conflict of interest, it is improper when you fail to disclose that interest, and use your official position to influence a decision that could serve your interest. When matters come before an advisory body in which an individual member has a direct or indirect financial interest and the action of the body could significantly affect that interest – beneficially or detrimentally – the member must disqualify himself/herself. He or she must abstain from all discussion and voting, and cannot try to influence the outcome of the matter in any way. The member should state the nature of the conflict and should leave the room until that item is finished.

If in doubt: Whenever a commissioner believes there may be an economic conflict of interest, he or she should seek an opinion from the City Attorney or the Fair Political Practice Commission. At any time, it is safest to err on the conservative side and to publicly identify the conflict.

Statements of Economic Interest Disclosure

The California Political Reform Act requires designated City officials, elected officials and members of the Planning Commission to file a statement of economic interest within 30 days of taking office and annually thereafter. The statement should be filed with the City Clerk. By City policy, certain other members of advisory boards may also be required to file this statement, disclosing investments and interest in real property held and income received during the reporting period.

Other Legal Issues

- Commissioners may not endorse ballot measures or candidates for public office. However, commission members may use their official title in political activities to identify themselves. Members should clearly note that any statement about a political position represents only their personal view of the issue or candidate and in no way implies endorsement by the commission or City.
- Correspondence (including letters, emails and other written communications) should not appear to represent the viewpoint of the commission unless it is for official business and has been approved by the commission.
- If a commissioner meets privately with an individual who has an item coming up for review, he or she should not make voting decisions or commitments. Equal opportunities and due process must be extended to all parties in matters under consideration. Commissioners may wish to disclose such contacts at the board meeting when the item is discussed.

4. Volunteer Programs 2008/2009 - Report
Recreation Services Manager Banks gave a detailed report of the success of the 24th Annual Volunteer Brunch that was held at the Beverly Hills Hotel on Sunday, April 26th. Commission was presented with recommendations for 2010 to consider a new venue due to the budget restraints and possibly revising the program.
5. Frank Fenton Field - Report
Staff gave a brief summary of the direction from the City Manager's office for the Commission to focus their efforts on only plaque type recognition similar in size to the Will Rogers Memorial Park bronze plaque. A recommendation should also be made on how the plaque should be installed: on a pedestal; flush on the ground; or mounted on an adjacent building; etc, and what specific working should be included on the plaque.

Beverly Hills Resident Linda Roberts addressed the Commission and staff and voiced her concerns and voiced why she felt a proper recognition should be considered in recognition of Mr. Fenton's efforts in obtaining that green space for the community.

Commission and staff will discuss options, visit the site, and bring back for a recommendation.

6. Meeting with BHUSD Staff Regarding Preschool - Report
Staff provided an update on a meeting held with the Beverly Hills Unified School District to review the Blue Ribbon Preschool Committee report and discuss the nine recommendations that came from the study.
